HANNAH TWYNN

A woman named Hannah Twynnoy worked at the White Lion pub in Malmesbury, England. One day in 1703, a traveling menagerie came to town. One of its attractions was a tiger. The story goes that Hannah kept annoying the tiger—even after she was warned not to. At some point, the tiger managed to escape and ended up attacking Hannah. How does the story end? Let's just say Hannah never bothered that tiger again.

Hannah may have been the first person to be killed by a tiger in Britain.

THE DEADLIEST CLIMB

Mount Everest Expedition Guide

Mount Everest is the tallest—and one of the deadliest—mountains in the world. Expedition guides are professionals who help climbers reach the peak safely. They clear paths up the most difficult mountain and attach ropes at the most difficult parts. They also carry supplies, including tents and bottles of oxygen. If one of their climbers becomes sick or injured, these guides make sure the traveler receives medical care and is safely led down the mountain.

It takes longer than a month to climb to Mount Everest's peak.

What It Takes

- ✓ Climbing expertise
- ✓ Knowledge of Everest's geography
- ✓ Leadership
- ✓ An ability to provide first aid
- ✓ Strong lungs

Guides who are from the Mount Everest area are called sherpas. They act as Everest guides most frequently.
