Spooky Season!

It's autumn. The leaves are turning color, the air is crisp, and the vibes are ... spooky! These clever tales with classic fall subjects are just the right amount of scary and silly for young readers. An acorn gets buried alive, only to rise like a zombie in the spring. A pumpkin begins to disappear, bite by bite. Granny Smith's ghost terrorizes an apple orchard. Tree leaves dry up and wither—is this the end of foliage as we know it? Collage-style art complements the silly, spooky story, making these perfect picture books for autumn read-alouds.

FUN FACTS About Hedgehogs!

Baby hedgehogs are called "hoglets."

The African Pygmy Hedgehog is the most common type of hedgehog kept as a pet. They are usually smaller and calmer than wild hedgehogs.

Wild hedgehogs live in Europe, Asia, and Africa.

They love being with other hedgehogs.

Hedgehogs are nocturnal, meaning they sleep during the day and are active at night.

When hedgehogs feel unsafe, they curl into a little ball to protect their soft, fuzzy tummies.

Hedgehogs don't see very well, but they have great hearing and sense of smell.

TOP 5 BIGGEST FRESHWATER FISH CAUGHT ON A ROD AND REEL

LARGEMOUTH BASS

RECORD:

Manabu Kurita—2009

This complete lunger weighed 22 pounds, 5 ounces (10.1 kg) when it was pulled from the waters of Lake Biwa in Japan.

RECORD:

Michael Schoenmakers—2018

It was a world record when the angler reeled this 112.7-pound (51.1 kg) mirror carp from the Euro Aqua Lake in Hungary, in Central Europe.

RECORD:

Lloyd Bull—1995

An average lake trout weighs about 15 pounds (6.8 kg). This one weighed 72 pounds (32.7 kg). It came from the waters of Great Bear Lake in Canada.

RECORD:

Les Anderson—1985

Almost as long as the angler himself, this massive Chinook salmon weighed 97 pounds, 4 ounces (44 kg). It has remained a world record for over 40 years.

CATFISH

RECORD:

Unknown Fisherman—2005

This one took over an hour to reel in. Weighing in at 646 pounds (293 kg), the Mekong giant catfish was hooked in Thailand and is considered one of the biggest freshwater fish ever caught.

Early soccer balls were made of inflated cow or pig bladders. This meant that a ball would be as big as the animal's bladder. There was no standard size. Later, inflated leather was used. This was more durable. Charles Goodyear made the first vulcanized rubber soccer ball in 1855.

Today, they are made of synthetic leather with a polyurethane outer cover. Every ball used in a match is inspected and approved by FIFA. The soccer balls have to have specific dimensions and be inflated so that the air pressure inside measures a certain number of pounds per square inch (PSI).

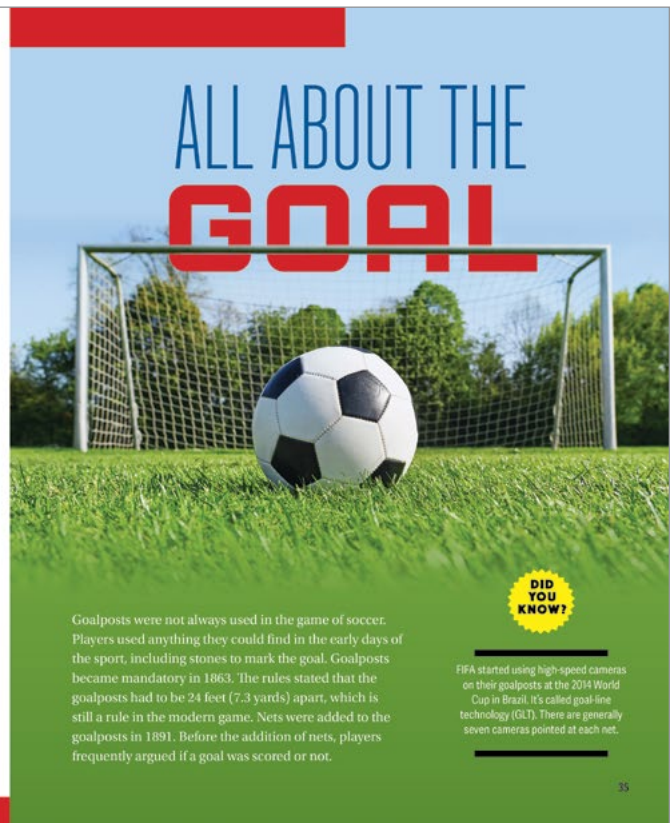

- Weight: 14 to 16 ounces (396.9 to 453.6 grams)
- Circumference: 27 to 28 inches (68.6 to 71.1 centimeters)
- Pounds Per Square Inch (PSI): 8.5 to 15.6 pounds per square inch (0.6 to 1.1 atm)

DID YOU KNOW?

Soccer balls were first painted with black-and-white checkers to make them more visible on black-and-white televisions.

JOKE

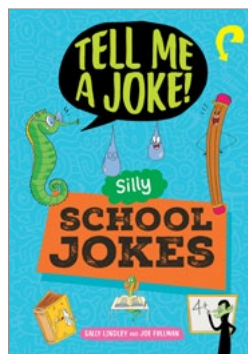

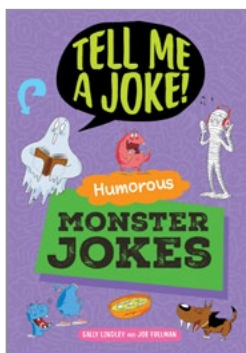

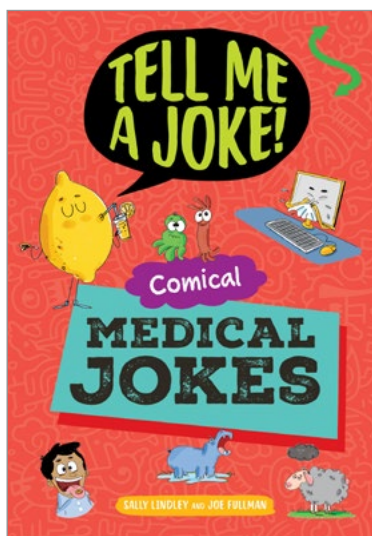

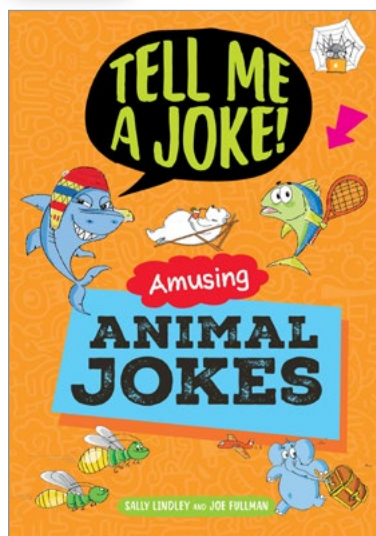

What did the soccer player dress up as for Halloween? A ghoukeeper.

Goalposts were not always used in the game of soccer. Players used anything they could find in the early days of the sport, including stones to mark the goal. Goalposts became mandatory in 1863. The rules stated that the goalposts had to be 24 feet (7.3 yards) apart, which is still a rule in the modern game. Nets were added to the goalposts in 1891. Before the addition of nets, players frequently argued if a goal was scored or not.

DID YOU KNOW?

FIFA started using high-speed cameras on their goalposts at the 2014 World Cup in Brazil. It's called goal-line technology (GLT). There are generally seven cameras pointed at each net.

Witchy Cat Tales

Molly Meows is no ordinary cat. She dreams of becoming a witch, even if the magical world insists that animal familiars can't be witches. After boldly crashing the first assembly at Mesmerine High and bungling her debut spell, Molly gets a chance to prove herself. She hones her meow-gical talents while navigating potion mishaps, reluctant classmates, and magical mentoring. With the help of best friend Cassie, Molly shows that creativity and courage matter more than tradition. Playful, fantastical, and filled with humor, the series celebrates perseverance, friendship, and defying expectations.

Pearl trotted up to Maria. Maria took the scarf off Pearl's horn. Pearl seemed so happy.

"I'm so glad we could help you," Maria said. "Can we come visit you?"

Pearl nuzzled Maria, blowing sweet-smelling air onto her face.

"I think that's a yes," Sophia laughed. Maria laughed too.

SADIE'S FAMOUS CRISPY COCONUT CRACKLES

WHAT YOU'LL NEED:

- ★ 2 tablespoons of cocoa powder
- ★ 2 tablespoons of powdered sugar (or a natural sweetener like honey or maple syrup)
- ★ ½ cup of coconut oil, melted
- ★ ½ cup of shredded coconut
- ★ 2 cups of crispy rice cereal
- ★ 12 cupcake papers

WHAT TO DO:

- 1 With the help of a grown-up, place the cupcake papers into a muffin or cupcake tray.
- 2 Add the cocoa powder and powdered sugar to the melted coconut oil, and stir until the cocoa powder and sugar dissolve.
- 3 With a wooden spoon, mix in the shredded coconut, and slowly add the crispy rice cereal into the coconut mixture. The mixture will be sticky and yummy!
- 4 Place a spoonful of the sticky mixture into a cupcake paper. Repeat until all the papers are filled. Ask your grown-up helper if you can lick the spoon if there is any mixture left!
- 5 Place your crackles in the fridge to set for at least two hours, and then eat them!

DID YOU KNOW?
The first-ever crackle recipe was from 1937!

GET CREATIVE!
Add a spoonful of golden raisins or chopped nuts for extra flavor and crunch. What else could you add to make this recipe famous among your friends and family?

Twisted Fairy Tales

If you think you know your fairy tales, think again! These early chapter books take the traditional tales and give them a twist. Once upon a time, a big bad shark went after three little narwhals, and Little Rude Riding Hood hurled insults at everyone! Snow White's robots help her out of a wicked jam, and Octo-Puss just wants enough boots for all eight "feet." Cleverly written tales full of moral lessons and laughs will keep kids laughing and learning.

- Series features themes of teamwork, courage, and gratitude.
- Broad appeal for fans of best-selling trade series.

"Hello?" I called. My voice felt shaky and unsure. "Anybody in here?"

I took another step. The running water sound was definitely in there. I carefully made my way to the bathroom. The light was on inside.

"You left the water on," I said, which seemed dumb. I think I would have been scared if a real person said, "Oh, I'm sorry." Especially since my dad, Olive, and I were the only ones there. Or were we?

I stepped into the bathroom. The sink faucet was running hot water. Steam was rising from the sink and fogging the mirror. As I stood there, I saw letters forming in the steam. It was like someone was writing a message with their finger. Right before my eyes.

I stood there frozen as each letter formed.

It said: leave us alone

I covered my mouth to stop from screaming.

ago,” Elm continued. “They’re trying to restore it. And this shelf is part of the hotel’s history.”

Carla sighed, and her mouth twisted. “You actually live in that old place? It’s haunted, you know.”

I shrugged. “Yeah, that’s what I hear.” Then the next thing just sort of came out. “Seems like your place is kind of haunted too,” I blurted.

“What do you mean?” Carla snapped.

“I think you have ghosts,” I replied, feeling my arms shake a little. “Ghost cats.”

“Who told you that?” Carla whispered, sounding a little angry. She glanced behind her as if she was afraid someone, maybe a customer, might hear.

“No one,” I replied quickly. A second later, an older woman dropped a couple of orange juices to the floor.

Heart of the Maze

Cameron, Livvy, and Sophia are visiting their odd Aunt Maggie when her pet parrot escapes into the backyard. In pursuit, the siblings soon find themselves in a huge magical hedge maze. Inside its twisting corridors, the children encounter mischievous fairies, troublesome gnomes, and towering trolls. The siblings could not be more different, and their usual bickering turns into real peril behind maze walls. As they solve riddles, dodge traps, and navigate fantastical dangers, they begin to understand that teamwork—not bossiness or bravado—is the only way forward.

The Pixel Portal

"OH! OH!" said the man in a strange electronic voice as they collided. The man somersaulted and crashed to the floor.

"I'm so sorry! Are you okay?" cried Max. But before Max could help him back to his feet, the man jumped up, spun around, and disintegrated into thousands of tiny pixels. As Max watched

"What in the name of Davy Crockett do you think you're doin'?" someone shouted in a cowboy drawl.

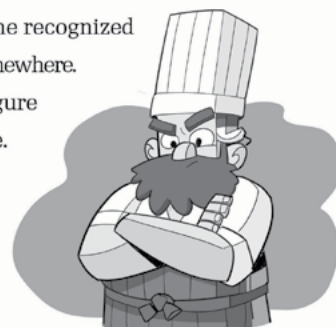

Max turned to see a huge-bellied man wearing a white chef's hat. The man was eyeing Max like a hungry vulture. He had an enormous brown, bushy beard. "Thanks to you, my waiter is chawin' gravel!"

"Chawin' what? Sorry?"

"Gravel! Didn't ya hear me?" barked the man.

Max was sure he recognized the man from somewhere. He just couldn't figure out exactly where.

"I'm s-so s-sorry, mister," huddled close to her and began describing the creature in terrifying detail.

"It had long claws," said Skip, watching her draw. "Yes, that's right. Just like that!"

"Okay ..." Daisy said, sketching furiously. "Tell me more."

"It stood up on two legs," Scooter said, wrinkling his nose. "They were smooth and shiny, as if they were made of rubber."

"Then there were the horns," said Skip. "No—smaller than that and on top of its head."

"The face was the worst part," Scooter whispered. "All dark and shadowy, except for the one glowing eye that never blinked. I'm sure it could see straight through us."

Daisy continued sketching until she had drawn the picture just right. When she finally held up her finished sketch, the otters gasped.

"That's it!" Smudge exclaimed. "That's the monster."

Daisy stared at the drawing. "Oh dear," she said.

Bartleby looked over her shoulder. "Oh dear, indeed," he said. "Are you thinking what I'm thinking?"

Chapter 1

Little Ghost

As the song came to an end, Scarlett Stitch bounced off Pandora's bed and struck her very best popstar pose. "One more time!" she shouted happily.

"We're supposed to be studying, not dancing," laughed her friend Maya. But Little Ghost was the best band in the world—according to Scarlett and her friends—and it was impossible not to dance to their latest song. So Scarlett wiggled her fingers, and pop music immediately filled the room again. Foxglove scooped up her black cat, Pirate, and whirled him around in time to the beat.

When the song was over, the four girls collapsed on the floor, giggling.

"That's enough," said Pirate, grumpily shaking his head. "I'm getting dizzy."

A few weeks ago, Scarlett would have been shocked to hear a cat talk—but that was before she'd discovered she had magical powers! Now that she had three new friends who were also junior witches, impossible things happened all the time!

New Fall 2026 Series

Frankie Forward

Crabs are known for scuttling sideways. But not Frankie. He walks forward! Everyday life becomes an adventure in problem-solving when you aren't like everyone else. With the unwavering support of his best friend Flo the clownfish, Frankie learns to navigate schools, coral reefs, and his seaside community in his own unique way. Each story drops Frankie into a new challenge—from crab-ball matches to coral-reef skateparks to undersea marathons—where his differences seem like obstacles at first. But with creativity, courage, and a dash of humor, Frankie always finds a way to join in while staying true to himself. Full-color, comic-book style art brings life to Frankie's aquatic adventures.

"YEEOOOOWWWWWCH!" I screamed. Pain shot through my body, all the way down to my webbed toes. No amount of whining and wailing made it feel better.

By the time I calmed down, the bees were gone. Even worse, the ice cream van had driven away.

But I thought about what Bonnie said. I needed to get inside that factory somehow.

Through the Portal

Siblings Meg and Misha discover a magical portal hidden in their backyard oak tree, a gateway that spawns entire worlds from whatever falls, or is thrown, inside. Each adventure brings a brand-new realm—whether cotton-candy islands, plant-creature planets, or knitted landscapes. As they explore these unpredictable dimensions, Meg's bold, act-first bravery and Misha's level-headed problem-solving are put to the test. Along the way, they befriend fantasy creatures who help them navigate bizarre dangers, surprising riddles, and the occasional out-of-control creation. Brother and sister discover that creativity and teamwork are the greatest adventures of all.

Misha's voice sounded muffled and far away. There was no hope of explaining what had just happened. Meg would have to figure it out herself.

She looked out over the strange world she had found herself in. The grass was tennis ball yellow. The dinosaurs that grazed the slopes looked odd. Odd in a squishy, rubbery kind of way.

Meg went to investigate.

A FAMOUS FOSSIL

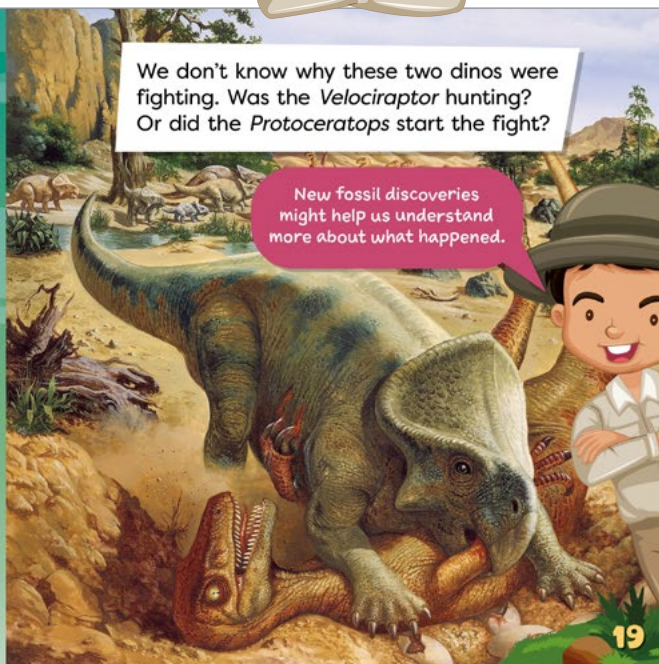

Some fossils have raised new questions about these dinos. One famous fossil shows a Velociraptor fighting a dino called a Protoceratops (pro-toh-SER-uh-tops).

This famous fossil was unearthed in the Gobi Desert. Most Velociraptor fossils have been found there.

We don't know why these two dinos were fighting. Was the Velociraptor hunting? Or did the Protoceratops start the fight?

New fossil discoveries might help us understand more about what happened.

Can You Guess?

Can you guess an animal based only on its tail? What about its nose? Animals come in all shapes, sizes, and colors. Their bodies may look similar, but each ear, nose, and bottom is built to help the individual critter survive in the wild. Take a look at the animal body parts and guess who it belongs to! Then, find out if you're right and learn more about the critter these bits are attached to. Bright illustrations paired with colorful photos and engaging text help readers solve these animal mysteries.

Comics vs. Manga

Comics and manga look very similar. However, there are some key things that make them different.

Manga are usually black and white. Comics often have color.

This is because manga stories come from Japan, where books are read from right to left. But comics come from all over the world.

Compared to most books in English, manga books are read backwards. The front of the book is where most books end.

THE HINDU GODS

Hinduism is one of the world's oldest religions. The first record of it is from 1500 BCE. Today, there are more than a billion Hindus around the globe.

Most of the world's Hindus live in India.

The oldest writings of Hinduism are the Vedas. This set of religious texts contains songs, prayers, and stories about the world and the Hindu gods.

Hinduism has one main god, named Brahman. However, different parts of Brahman are shown in thousands of other gods and goddesses. Six of these are split into two groups.

The Trimurti is a group of three gods. The Tridevi is a group of three goddesses.

Pufferfish

Watch out for a puffy little fish from tropical oceans around the world. Pufferfish are known for being able to fill their bodies with water and air to puff themselves up.

Pufferfish are full of toxins. So, eating them comes with deadly consequences. Every year, around 50 people in Japan die from pufferfish poisoning.

A single pufferfish has enough toxin to kill 30 adult humans. All it takes is one poisonous drop to make a person's mouth go numb. Too much of the poison can even paralyze or kill someone!

BREAKING THE LAW

Ancient Egyptians took crime very seriously. Police sometimes had monkeys with them. These monkeys chased after criminals who tried to run away.

Even just seeing a crime happen could get you into trouble. Police had an unusual way of making sure witnesses were telling the truth about what they saw. How? They beat them up!

28

Ancient Egyptians believed statues of the god Amun could decide if criminals were innocent. If the statue moved one way, they were innocent. But if it moved the other way, the criminals were guilty. However, these movements were actually done by a priest hiding inside or behind the statue!

AMUN

Punishments for some crimes could be deadly. Someone caught stealing could have parts of their body chopped off. Other horrible punishments included being beaten up, stabbed, or burned alive!

A SACRED SPOT

This lake may look like it belongs on another world, but it is sacred to people on Earth. The Okanagan First Nations people build cairns (KAY-ernz), or stacks of rocks, along the shore that honor the spirit of the lake. The Okanagan and others also use minerals from the lake for healing.

The salt of Spotted Lake has been used to treat health problems such as arthritis.

Bearport Biographies

Ever wonder what inspired your favorite role model to rise to the top? This series introduces readers to some of the most inspiring people in recent times. Young people will learn about the lives and accomplishments of amazing people who reached for the stars and never gave up on their dreams. Each book contains information on the early lives of these role models as well as the inspirations and struggles they faced on their journeys to reach their goals.

New Spring 2026 Series Pollinator Power!

Many animals flit, flap, and buzz from flower to flower. These little critters may be looking for a snack, but what they are doing is much bigger than grabbing a quick meal. These pollinators are helping the plants that are helping them. Explore how pollinators are specially made for the task of finding flowering food and what happens when they do. Then, learn what is putting pollinators at risk and what we could lose if these important animals were to go away. Fun, inviting text and stunning images make this set a beautiful addition for animal-lovers or anyone who cares about the environment.

A BLUR OF COLOR

A blur of color flies by flowering plants in a mountain meadow. Whoosh. It's a hummingbird! This tiny bird flits from bloom to bloom, sticking its long bill inside each for a sweet drink. But the hummingbird is doing more than taking a sip. All that work is actually helping the plants reproduce. It's time for some pollinator power!

There are more than 300 species of hummingbirds in the world.

Sky Terrors: Birds of Prey

Take to the skies with some of the world's most terrifying predators. From beak to claws, learn what makes birds of prey so fascinating . . . and deadly. Action-packed photos paired with engaging text make this set perfect for budding ornithologists and adventure-seekers alike. Beware of terror from the sky!

EYES IN THE SKIES

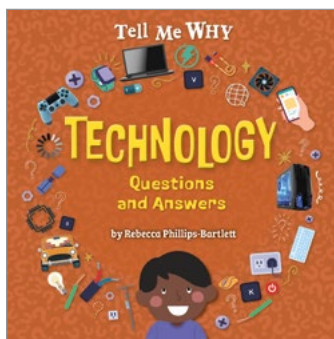

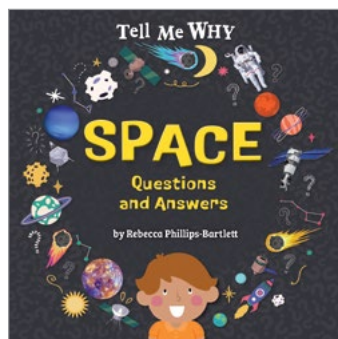

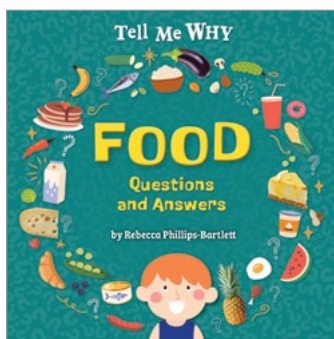

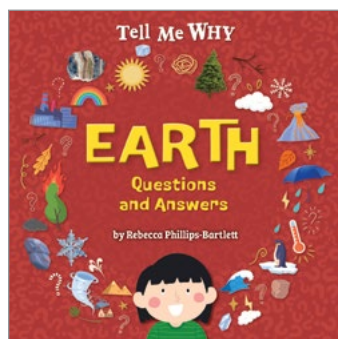

Like other raptors, ospreys hunt from above, using incredibly powerful eyesight to find their prey—fish. The terrifying hunters are able to spot their target from up to 200 ft. (60 m) above the water. When the osprey sees a snack, the fish doesn't stand a chance. The powerful bird dives in feet first, taking hold with sharp talons.

Ospreys eat both freshwater and saltwater fish.

Furry Friends

Mammals are vertebrates that have fur or hair. Almost all mammals give birth to live babies. And they feed their young with milk from their bodies.

Mammals live in forests, deserts, and high in the mountains. Dolphins and whales are mammals that live in the ocean!

Some mammals carry their babies in special pouches. These animals are called marsupials. Kangaroos and possums are marsupials.

A Miner's Life

Lawlessness wasn't the only challenge for gold seekers. Mining was hard work. Prospectors worked 12 to 16 hours every day. Many got hurt or sick.

Some miners dug for gold or searched for it in rivers. Others used a more dangerous method. They blasted for gold with explosives.

For a few lucky miners, the hard work paid off. It is thought there was about $2 billion in gold discovered during the Gold Rush. However, many miners never found a thing.

Prospectors panned for gold in rivers.

Democracy Spreads

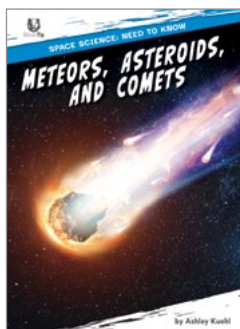

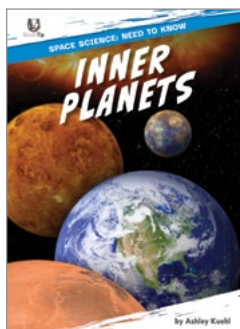

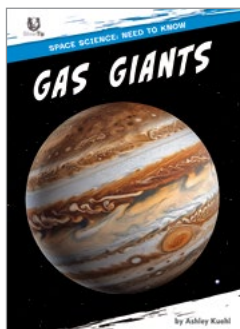

During the 1700s, democracy was on the rise. People wanted more of a say in their government.

As democracy spread, it changed. More places tried representative democracies. Over time, more people got the right to vote. New laws also allowed more people to hold office.

In 1776, the 13 colonies in North America separated from Great Britain. They formed the United States. The new country became a democratic republic. This inspired similar movements in France and Haiti.

Small and Rocky

There are eight different planets in our solar system. The ones closest to the sun are called the inner planets. They are the smallest. All four have rocky surfaces. Let's explore Mercury, Venus, Earth, and Mars!

What we learn about planets and the sun can help us understand how things work on Earth. Some planets are a lot like ours. But no other planet is known to have life.

Earth Science—Our Planet: Need to Know

Explore the planet with this curricular high-interest, low-reading level series! An approachable look at Earth's unique characteristics keeps struggling readers engaged while carefully leveled text paired with dyslexia-friendly font and design makes learning easier. Featured infographics and SilverTips for Success guide a review of key concepts from the book to help reinforce comprehension.

Around It Goes

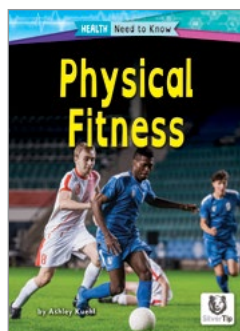

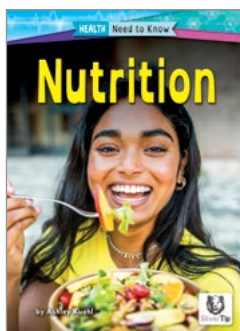

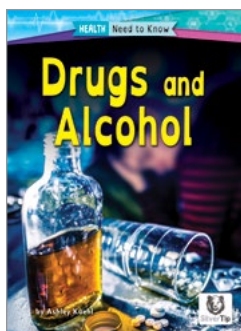

The amount of water on Earth stays mostly the same. But the liquid does move and change in the water cycle. It travels between the ground, air, and ocean over time. At different points of the cycle, water is in different states, or forms.

Only a small amount of Earth's water is moving in the water cycle at one time. Most of it is stored somewhere. It can be found in the ocean, clouds, and ice.

The Future of AI

AI is advancing. As it does, people are looking for new ways to use it. Some researchers are training humanlike robots. AI helps the robots do things humans can do. Soon, even more will be possible.

Some AI researchers are working to join tech and people. They are trying to combine human brain cells with computer systems. Someday, there could be brains that are part human, part robot.

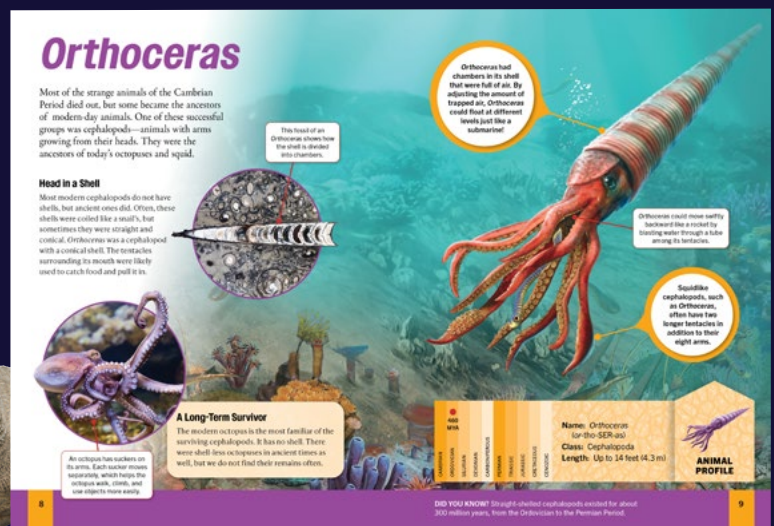

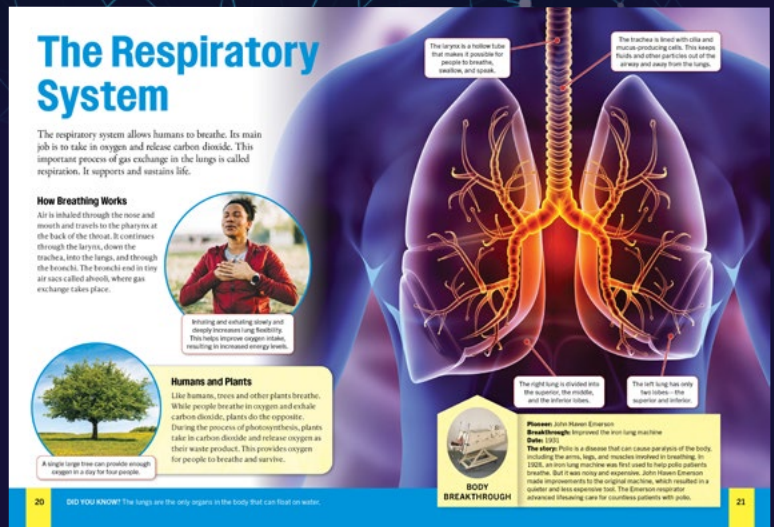

URSA books feature exciting designs and topics to bring nonfiction content to life for middle schoolers.

KEY FEATURES:

- Dig into topics that spark kids' curiosity, from the eerie to the extraordinary.
- Browseable text broken into sections to support accessibility.
- Helps readers put curricular topics into real-world context.

New Fall 2026 Series

The Human Body

The human body is made up of trillions of cells that keep us going. But how do these cells come together to form tissues and organs? And what are the hidden connections between the body's many elaborate systems? This series explores the complex human body in easy-to-digest, encyclopedic-style entries that are perfect for both browsing and deeper research. Captivating photos and detailed infographics are paired with straightforward explanations, fascinating facts, and spotlights on breakout moments of discoveries. A final Review and Reflect feature allows readers to check for understanding and think deeper. From the inner workings of the brain to the electricity that keeps the heart beating, let's explore the human body.

Eyes and Sight

The eye is a sensor that detects patterns of light. It turns light into nerve signals using more than 100 million light-sensitive nerve cells. These messages travel along the optic nerve to the brain, where we use them to make a virtual model of the world around us.

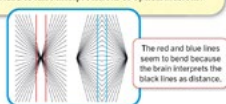

Journey Through the Eye

Light enters the eye through a hole called the pupil. The lens and cornea focus light onto tissue at the back of the eye called the retina. This region has a layer of light-detecting cells. Rods allow vision in dim light, and cones detect fine detail and colors. The retina also has layers of neurons that send signals to the brain.

Visual Tricks

We don't always see the world as it actually is. Instead, we see what our brain interprets from the data. To make sense of the data more quickly, the visual cortex takes shortcuts based on certain rules. However, this can lead to false interpretations or optical illusions.

Tears wash across the cornea to keep the eye moist, help wounds heal, and protect against infection.

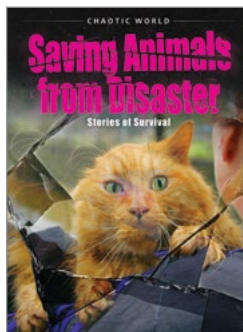

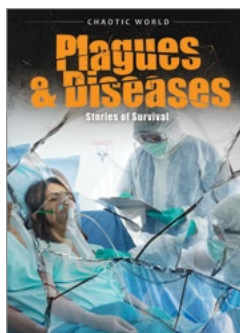

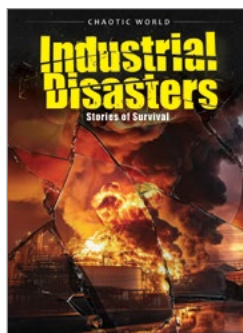

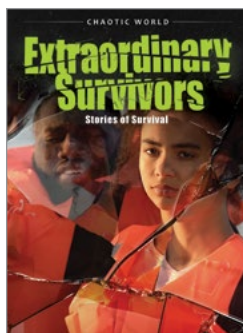

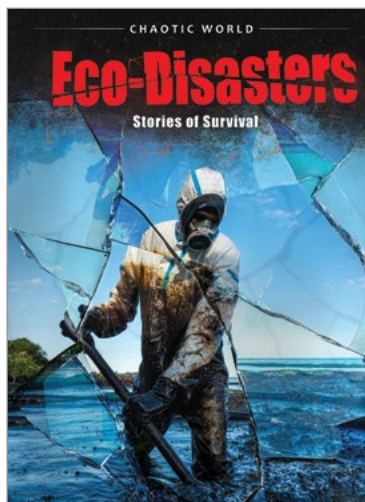

Two sets of muscles close or open the iris to shrink or enlarge the pupil. A larger pupil lets in more light.

Blue irises are caused by scattering light, not by a blue pigment.

Scientist: Patricia Bath
Breakthrough: Improved cataract surgery
Date: 1982
The story: Ophthalmologist Patricia Bath cofounded the American Institute for the Prevention of Blindness, which works to solve and prevent blindness. In 1981, she invented LASERPHACO—a pioneering device and technique for laser cataract surgery. It removes cataracts with a laser, making it easier to insert a new lens and restore people's vision.

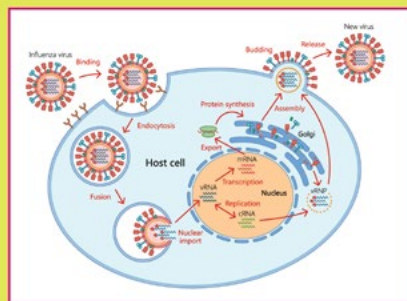

DID YOU KNOW? One in four people sneezes in bright sunlight. This is because the optical nerve is in the same bundle as the nerve that carries sense signals to and from the nose.

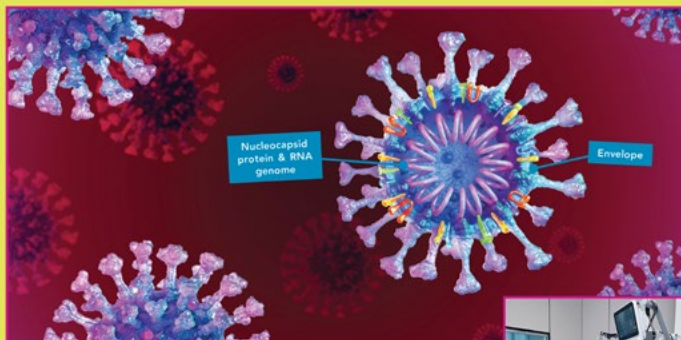

Spotlight On: Viruses

There are more viruses on Earth than stars in the universe. They are found almost everywhere and usually enter the body through the mouth, nose, eyes, or cuts in the skin.

Viruses are the smallest germs on Earth and need living hosts, such as people, animals, or plants, to reproduce. They are made of genetic material inside a protein shell called a capsid. Some viruses also have an extra outer layer, called an envelope, that helps them attach to and enter host cells. Once inside, viruses attach to cells and inject their genetic material to make many copies of themselves.

Viruses spread through the air, on surfaces, and in food or water. They are more likely to spread in crowded indoor places. Most viruses go away on their own, but some need antiviral medicine. A few, such as HIV and herpes, stay in the body for life.

People get sick when a virus infects enough cells before the immune system can fight it off. Some viruses stay in one place, but others spread through the blood to attack tissues and organs. Symptoms such as fever and chills are signs the immune system is trying to destroy a virus.

Viruses have the potential to be deadly when they cause secondary issues such as pneumonia and inflammation of the brain. Sometimes, people's immune systems respond so powerfully to viruses that they destroy too much tissue, leading to fatal organ failure.

Early Life on Earth

About 550 million years ago, life really took off on Earth. What started as a small number of single-celled organisms grew more complex and spread across the oceans. From fossil evidence, we now know a great deal about the physical features of early life, from the simplest marine organisms of the Cambrian Period to the first dinosaurs of the Triassic.

An Explosion of Life

During the Cambrian Period, Earth experienced a large increase in the oxygen levels of the atmosphere and oceans. This gave plants and animals access to more energy to develop new features, survive in new environments, and spread. It resulted in the rapid diversification of life, which is known as the Cambrian Explosion.

Trilobites are some of the earliest creatures found in the fossil record. These ancient arthropods lived about 521 million years ago during the early Cambrian Period.

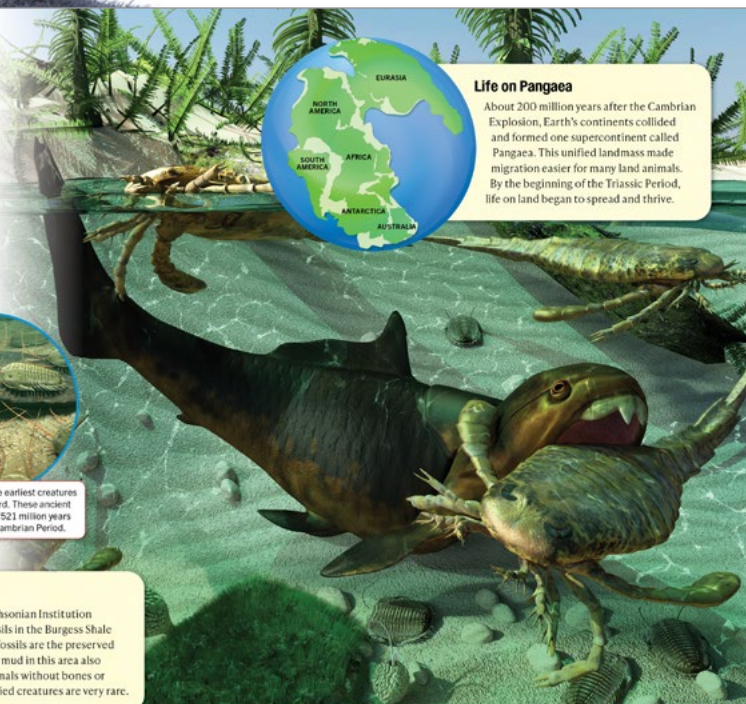

The Burgess Shale

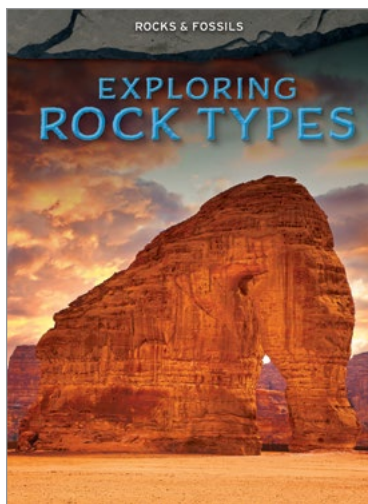

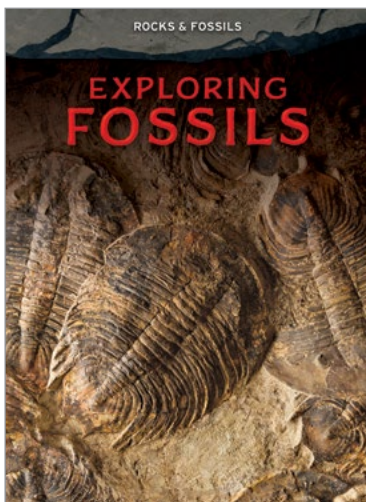

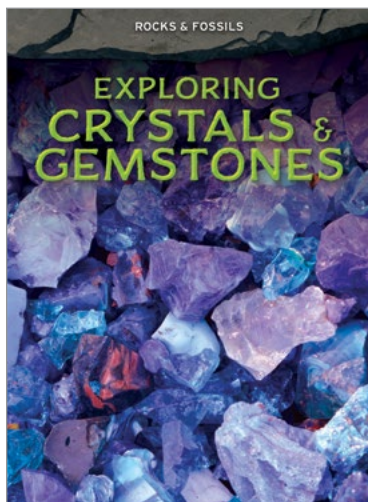

In 1909, a scientist from the Smithsonian Institution discovered a large deposit of fossils in the Burgess Shale in British Columbia. While most fossils are the preserved skeletons of ancient animals, the mud in this area also helped preserve soft-bodied animals without bones or exoskeletons. Fossils of soft-bodied creatures are very rare.

Life on Pangaea

About 200 million years after the Cambrian Explosion, Earth's continents collided and formed one supercontinent called Pangaea. This unified landmass made migration easier for many land animals. By the beginning of the Triassic Period, life on land began to spread and thrive.

New Spring 2026 Series Rocks & Fossils

The natural world is made up of thousands of different kinds of rocks, gems, crystals, and fossils. They formed through a variety of geological processes, and many can be put to use. But how and which ones? This encyclopedia-style series—perfect for browsing and book reports—is packed with compelling entries that explore the geological world. Each page is filled with extraordinary photos and comprehensive text featuring real-world examples and fascinating facts about rocks and fossils. A final Review and Reflect feature allows readers to check for understanding and think deeper. From the never-ending rock cycle to the remains of ancient species that once walked on Earth, discover more about the natural materials that make up our world.

Stratigraphy

Stratigraphy is one of the oldest branches of geology. It studies rock layers, called strata, and how those layers were formed over time. By studying the fossils in each rock layer, scientists can form a theory of how life developed over time.

Sediment

Most of the rock that contains fossil records is sedimentary rock, which is made of compressed sediment, such as rock particles, sand, silt, and mud. Sediment is deposited in layers over long periods of time. Geologists use the fossils found in specific rock layers to determine how old those layers are.

The Law of Superposition states that the oldest rock layers will always be at the bottom of a rock formation.

William Smith

British scientist William Smith was the first to recognize that fossils can be dated according to the age of the strata in which they were found. He realized that the same fossils appear in the same rock layers, even when those layers have been physically separated.

Smith applied his extensive knowledge of stratigraphy to create the first geological map of England.

There are two main types of stratigraphy. Lithostratigraphy studies the physical characteristics of rock layers. Biostratigraphy, on the other hand, studies fossils in the rock layers.

MESOZOIC ERA

GEOLOGIC TIME SCALE

The Precambrian: Prior to 541 million years ago; the age of early life
 Paleozoic Era: 541 to 252 million years ago; marine life, insects, and ferns are common
 Mesozoic Era: 252 to 66 million years ago; the age of reptiles
 Cenozoic Era: 66 million years ago and to today; the age of mammals

Chemistry Explained

The world around us is full of elements. Many of them are necessary for life, and many more can be put to use. Which ones and how? The answers are found in the science of chemistry. This series explores the science behind chemicals and all that they do through encyclopedic-style entries. Featuring real-world examples and bios on some of the greatest chemists in history, each page is filled with remarkable photos and comprehensive text perfect for browsing or report research. A final Review and Reflect feature allows readers to check for understanding and think deeper. Batteries

Many modern electronic devices, appliances, and cars rely on electrical energy. But not every electric device can be plugged in at all times. These devices need a way to store energy for later use. They rely on batteries that convert chemical energy into electrical energy.

Converting Chemicals to Energy

Each battery is filled with two chemicals that react to each other and release electrons when the battery is plugged into a circuit. A device or series of wires that create a path for electrons. As electrons move through a metal wire, they carry their negative charge with them. This causes a positive charge, or current, to move in the opposite direction from the battery's positive end to the negative end.

The Life of a Charge

The first usable batteries were created in the 1800s. These batteries worked only until the chemicals inside had finished reacting to each other, and they worked only once. The first rechargeable battery was introduced in 1859. Early rechargeable batteries could be used multiple times but held less charge over time. Newer rechargeable batteries last much longer.

Akira Yoshino
Born 1948

Akira Yoshino is a Japanese chemist who shared the 2019 Nobel Prize in Chemistry with two other chemists. He designed the world's first commercially viable lithium-ion battery in the early 1980s. Lithium-ion batteries are more durable and charge much faster than traditional lead-acid batteries. This helped make smart devices, such as mobile phones, much more affordable.

What are the many kinds of life on Earth, and how do they each survive? The answers are found in the study of biology. This encyclopedic-style series—perfect for browsing and book reports—is packed with compelling entries that explore everything about life. Each page is filled with extraordinary photos and comprehensive text featuring real-world examples, fascinating facts, and bios on the greatest thinkers in biology. Horror in the House?

Old houses hold an undeniable charm, reminding us of lively stories from the past. We wonder about all that may have happened in these homes. But with echoing footsteps and mysterious voices, wonder can quickly turn to fear. Perhaps the past hasn't quite finished and is demanding to still be seen and heard in the present...

Death and More Death

FRANKLIN CASTLE
CLEVELAND, OHIO

Whirling lights, chilling cries, doors flying off their hinges—these are just some of the strange things visitors have reported at Franklin Castle. Could the ghostly events have anything to do with the mansion's mysterious past?

Franklin Castle

Hannes Tiedemann built Franklin Castle in 1881 for his wife, children, and mother. The stone mansion is topped with towers, giving it a castle-like appearance. It has more than 20 rooms, including a huge ballroom and—some believe—several secret passageways.

Not long after it was built, a string of mysterious deaths took place at the castle. In 1891, Tiedemann's mother and young daughter died within weeks of each other. During the next three years, Hannes and his wife buried three more children, the youngest child being just 11 days old. The cause of the children's deaths is unknown. When Tiedemann's wife passed away in 1895, neighbors began to wonder whether Hannes was involved in the deaths.

By 1908, the entire Tiedemann family, including Hannes, had died. When the bones of children were discovered in a cabinet in the house, people began to believe the rumors that Hannes was a murderer. Could there be another explanation for all the deaths?

According to a legend, Hannes might also have killed his young niece by hanging her from a beam in a secret room in the castle.

Ocean Life

From single-celled organisms to the largest animals on the planet, Earth's oceans host a wide range of life. The compelling entries in this encyclopedic-style series explore the depths of the ocean. Each page is filled with comprehensive text and extraordinary photos in a format perfect for browsers or book report writers. From shoreline mangrove forests to the deepest trenches of the ocean, explore life beneath the waves.

Crabs

Crabs belong to a group of arthropods called crustaceans. Like all arthropods, including insects and spiders, they have a tough exoskeleton and jointed legs that bend easily for walking. Unlike other arthropods, crustaceans have two pairs of feelers, called antennae, on their heads.

Ten Legs

Crabs have five pairs of legs. The back four pairs are for walking, often in a sideways direction because of their position and joints. The front pair of legs, often called claws, end in pincers. The claws are used for grabbing and killing prey, as well as for signaling and fighting.

Hermit Crabs

Although hermit crabs are crustaceans, they are not true crabs. True crabs have a very tough shell called a carapace covering their bodies. Hermit crabs do not have a carapace, so they protect their soft bodies by using the empty shells of other creatures, often sea snails.

A hermit crab carries around an abandoned seashell, then pulls its whole body inside at the first sign of danger.

Male fiddler crabs have one claw much larger than the other. They use it for signaling to females and for fighting off other males.

HALLOWEEN CRAB

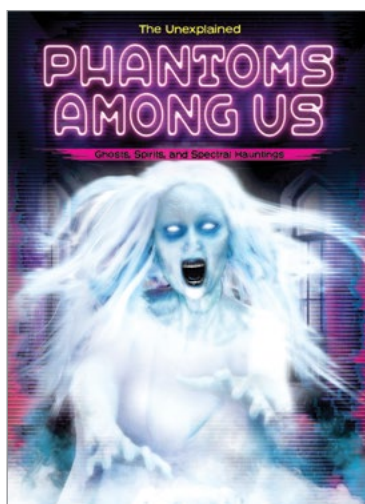

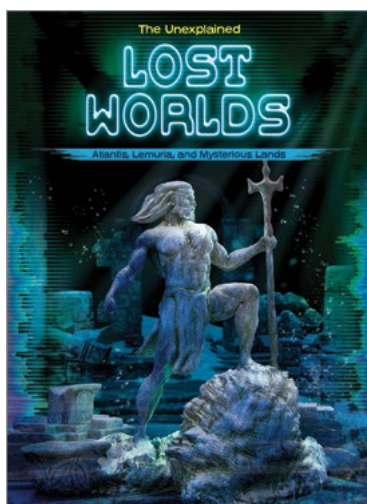

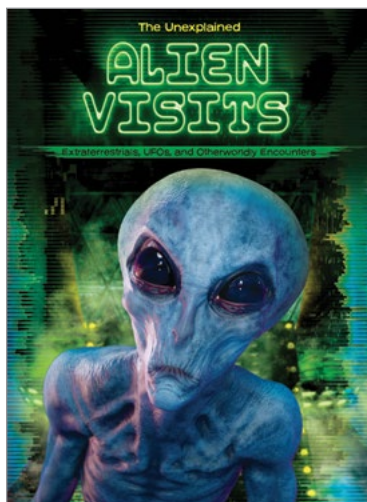

Length: Up to 4.7 in. (12 cm)
Range: Pacific coast of Central America
Habitat: Mangrove forests, sand dunes, coastal rainforests, and shallow ocean water
Diet: Leaves and young plants
Conservation: Not at risk

The red rock crab lives on rocky seashores in Central and South America.

A red rock crab's carapace is about 2 in. (5 cm) wide.

Like other beach-living crabs, the female red rock crab releases her larvae into the water. After the larvae grow into adults, they swim to shore.

DID YOU KNOW? The largest crab is the Japanese spider crab, which can grow up to 12 ft. (3.7 m) across from pincer to pincer.

The Unexplained

All around the world there are strange stories. They tell of humanlike creatures walking on two legs, aliens dropping by from other planets, cities lost to history, and spirits coming back from the dead. What could these unusual phenomena be? A stunning design alongside strong narrative text takes readers through mysteries from the past and reports from the present to explore the unexplainable.

Microscopes

Microscopes are used to look at objects that are too small to see with just the human eye. They use lenses arranged in the same way as those in a refracting telescope, but in a much smaller tube and with the object viewed being much closer to the main lens. Microscopes have opened up a world of tiny life-forms and beautiful structures.

Parts of an Optical Microscope

An optical microscope works with light. The item being studied is placed on a stage with light shining on it. Light from the sample goes into the objective lens and from there to the eyepiece. The image is focused by changing the distance between the stage and the objective lens. This microscope has three objective lenses of different strengths.

Microscopes give scientists a way to study small parts of living bodies and the structures of crystals and rocks.

Electron Microscopes

The most powerful microscopes work with beams of electrons rather than light. The wavelength of visible light is large relative to the tiniest structures. Electrons are much smaller, and using them instead can reveal more detail. Electron microscopes offer magnification thousands of times greater than optical microscopes.

This mite, a tiny relative of spiders, has been imaged by an electron microscope. Beams of electrons are bounced off an object's surface to create this type of image.

An electron microscope cannot be used to examine things while they are alive, because the sample is kept in a vacuum without air.

The mite is less than 0.25 inches (6 mm) long.

Marian Farquharson
1846–1912

In 1885, the British scientist Marian Farquharson became the first woman to be elected to the Royal Microscopical Society. She was an expert in natural history, especially the anatomy of plants. In 1899, Farquharson was a leading organizer of the Congress of the International Council of Women, held in London. She continued to lead a successful campaign to allow women to work as scientists and join scientific societies.

DECODABLES

BY jump!

DECODABLES BY JUMP! is engaging nonfiction that introduces the basics of letter recognition and phonetically decodable reading.

KEY FEATURES:

- Aligns with Science of Reading to introduce the basics of phonetically decodable reading.
- Teaching tips and review sections help reinforce literacy skills covered in the text.
- Each book includes interactive activities for readers.

T is for ten.

New Fall 2026 Series

My First Letters

In My First Letters, young readers learn the names of letters and explore how letters and sounds are connected. In aligning with the Science of Reading, short, familiar words help readers discover how to blend letter sounds to decode and read words. Bright, fun, real-life images of familiar objects correlated to each letter visually reinforce each target letter sound. Young readers see where each letter is in the alphabet and practice tracing both upper and lowercase letters to reinforce sequence and foster letter recognition. Best Practice Teaching Tips guide caregivers in instruction to aid understanding and reinforce further implementation, while a feature at the end of each book exposes readers to fun words that share the sound, allowing readers to explore words through sounds and build on their learned letter knowledge.

Spot the Differences

Can you spot the differences? Readers will learn to distinguish common animals while learning about their appearances, habitats, and behaviors with this fun, interactive series! Carefully leveled text relays information about both animals and asks readers to name which is shown in the photos. Answers appear upside down on the bottom of each page, making reading for learning easy and fun. A See and Compare feature shows both animals side by side, labeling their body parts so readers can easily compare their physical similarities and differences, while a Quick Facts feature lists information about each animal's size, behavior, and habitat. Each book also includes picture labels, reading tips for teachers and parents, a table of contents, an index, and a picture glossary.

LEVEL 2

Meet the Community Helpers! introduces beginning readers to a day in the life of community helpers with fun, simple storylines and bright illustrations. Each title focuses on one kind of community helper, highlighting roles and responsibilities, equipment and machinery they use, and the safety rules they follow. These fully-illustrated books provide a supportive educational fiction reading experience with a focus on sight words, tightly controlled vocabulary, repetitive text patterns and sounds, and fun illustrations to match the storylines and enhance imagination. Children will develop reading skills by learning about the important jobs of the helpers they see and interact with in their communities. Titles include tools for teachers and caregivers, a table of contents, an index, and a picture glossary to reinforce new vocabulary. A quiz feature reinforces key takeaways for each subject.

Learning Life Skills with Mythical Creatures LEVEL 2

In Learning Life Skills with Mythical Creatures, readers follow along as mythical creatures experience strong emotions and learn how to successfully navigate them, all while developing essential life skills. With a focus on social and emotional learning (SEL), these books highlight how a strong emotion affects the mythical creature, how their response to the emotion affects others, and how the mythical creature can learn from their experience to build life skills including showing respect, working as a team, and staying positive. Tightly controlled vocabulary and bright, fun illustrations that match the storylines enhance self and social awareness. Titles include tools for teachers and caregivers, a table of contents, and a picture glossary to reinforce new vocabulary. A comprehensive visual quiz at the end of each book asks readers to identify the life skill the mythical creature has learned.

Minerva was one of Jupiter's daughters. She was the goddess of arts and war. One day, a woman named Arachne said she was better at weaving than Minerva. She challenged Minerva to a contest.

Arachne's tapestry was beautiful. But it made fun of the gods. Minerva was angry. She turned Arachne into a spider. Arachne spun webs for the rest of her life.

First Experiences LEVEL 1

First experiences can be intimidating, and children may have a hard time navigating their emotions and reactions to these situations. In First Experiences, beginning readers will follow young characters who are experiencing new situations or relationships for the first time. Social and emotional learning (SEL) concepts aid the reader in understanding the specific emotions and body sensations that can accompany each and help them prepare for the experience, while sight words, tightly controlled vocabulary, and repetitive text patterns and sounds help develop reading skills. Bright, fun illustrations match the storylines and enhance imagination while readers learn healthy ways to navigate new situations. Each title includes tools for teachers and caregivers, a table of contents, and a picture glossary. A Let's Review! feature asks readers to reflect on the content to answer a quiz question.

New Spring 2026 Series

American Heroes

Ruby Bridges helped bring races together at a young age. Alice Wong advocated for people with disabilities. George Washington Carver changed the way we grow crops. American Heroes introduces readers to historical and present-day citizens from all walks of life who changed the United States for the better. Historical and current photos complement the text, and a timeline shows major events in the person's life. Each book also has a table of contents, infographic, glossary, index, compelling What Do You Think? sidebars to encourage deeper inquiry, and reading tips for teachers and parents.

CHAPTER 3 21

The History of Foods

How did a baking mistake create the chocolate chip cookie? Which candy and cereal companies stole recipes from one another? The History of Foods answers these questions and reveals America's food industry secrets, all while introducing readers to the chefs, inventors, and taste testers behind the brand names. The History of Foods explores popular foods and signature snacks throughout the decades, introducing how and when they were first invented, company rivalries for the best treat, and tricks that helped market these foods as staples in the United States and around the world. Historical photos and bright, current photographs complement the carefully leveled text to make reading easy and fun and compare foods then and now. Each title includes an infographic, timeline, sidebars, table of contents, glossary, and index.

CHAPTER 1

WHAT IS AI?

Imagine you are sick. You go to the doctor. Instead of a human doctor, a robot sees you! It asks how you feel. The robot swabs your nose to test what you are sick with.

We do not have robot doctors yet. But we might someday! If we do, it will be thanks to artificial intelligence (AI). AI is smart. It lets computers learn and use language. AI does things humans use knowledge and skills to do.

All About Arachnids

All About Arachnids introduces readers to the world's most interesting spiders. With a high-interest STEM approach, each book focuses on a specific arachnid, detailing its anatomy, many kinds of species, habitats, diets, and behaviors. Vibrant, full-color photos and labels complement the text to show the unique features of each arachnid. Take a Look! infographics provide additional information, such as detailed body diagrams, range maps, and the molting process. Each title also includes sidebars, a glossary, a table of contents, an index, and a STEM activity.

A half-pipe is a ramp. It is curved on both ends. Zooming down one side gives a skater momentum to roll up the other side.

Skaters pump to go even faster. To pump, a skater crouches as the board reaches the bottom. The skater straightens as they start up the other side. Changing their center of gravity builds speed. More speed gives the skater more momentum. They send their board into the air!

DID YOU KNOW?

The best skaters go to the Olympics and the X Games. They win with skateboard science!

By 2000, large companies were interested in buying Ben & Jerry's. That year, Ben and Jerry sold their company for $326 million to Unilever, a large company that owns many brands.

But Ben and Jerry had one condition. They requested a group of advisors to protect the brand's quality. The advisors would also make sure the company continued supporting charities through its business practices and donations. Ben and Jerry remained as advisors for the company's charity work. But by 2025, both had left the company.

THE PEOPLE

The Shoshone are descendants of Native Americans who called themselves Newe. This means "The People." There are three main Shoshone groups. They are the Eastern Shoshone, the Northern Shoshone, and the Western Shoshone.

Shoshone people have lived in the Great Basin region for thousands of years. Their homelands cover areas of what is now California, Idaho, Nevada, Utah, and Wyoming. The Wind River Mountain range in Wyoming is home to the Eastern Shoshone. The Northern Shoshone mostly live in Idaho. The Western Shoshone are mostly in Nevada.

SWORD-BILLED HUMMINGBIRD

Hummingbird bills are long and sharp. The birds use these as weapons and to easily reach into flowers. Their bills have forked tongues inside. They flick these many times to lap up nectar quickly.

Many moths are toxic. They produce chemicals that make them smell and taste bad. This causes predators to avoid eating the insects.

SPECTACLED BEARS

Spectacled bears are named for the light markings around their eyes. Some look like they are wearing glasses! They are also called Andean bears.

WHERE DO THEY LIVE?

They mostly live in the dense forests of the Andes Mountains in South America. They are the only native bears on the continent.

APPEARANCE

Spectacled bears are some of the smallest bears. They have round faces and short, wide snouts. Their thick coats are dark brown to black.

THE LAST OF ITS KIND

The spectacled bear is the last remaining species of the short-faced bear subfamily. They belong to a group of bears that first lived around 1.8 million years ago.

SIZE COMPARISON

Weight	European brown bear	Spectacled bear	Giant panda

Hayley Williams gained her rock star reputation as the lead singer of the band Paramore. She is also a solo artist.

Stephen Hawking

Stephen Hawking is one of the world's most famous physicists. He helped explain the relationship between space and time in a way ordinary people could understand.

EARLY LIFE

Hawking was interested in space growing up. He gained entrance to the University of Oxford in 1962. There, he studied physics. He attended the University of Cambridge for his doctorate. While there, Hawking was diagnosed with amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS). The disease caused him to slowly lose control of his muscles.

SCIENCE CELEBRITY

In the 1980s, Hawking began focusing on how the universe formed. In 1988, he published A Brief History of Time. This book used simple language to explain the history of the universe. It sold more than 10 million copies. Hawking traveled the world giving lectures and making TV appearances.

EXPLORING BLACK HOLES

ALS did not slow Hawking down. He earned his doctorate in 1964. Much of his research focused on black holes. In 1974, he theorized that black holes can give off radiation in certain conditions. This phenomenon was named "Hawking radiation." In 1977, he became a professor at Cambridge.

WRITING FOR CHILDREN

In 2007, Hawking and his daughter Lucy co-wrote a children's book called George's Secret Key to the Universe.

FINAL THOUGHTS

Hawking continued his work until his death in 2018. His final paper was published a few months after he died. Hawking is remembered as one of the greatest thinkers of modern times.

AWARDS AND HONORS

- 1974: Royal Society
- 2006: Copland Medal
- 2009: Presidential Medal of Freedom
