Chapter Five Message in a Bottle

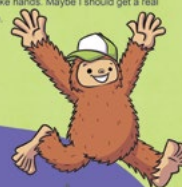

The next morning, Pa was up bright and early.
Imka followed him down to the beach. "Are you going fishing already?"
"That's right," Pa said. "That big fish is out there, and I'm going to catch it!"

Chapter 2

Next In Line

Nice to meet you! Good morning! Welcome to the amusement park! No pictures, please. I'm shy. Sure, I'll sign an autograph for you.

Pretending to be Bigfoot is fun. I'm a natural. All I have to do is smile and shake hands. Maybe I should get a real job here.

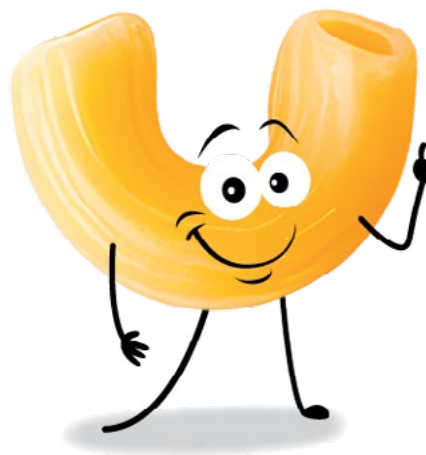

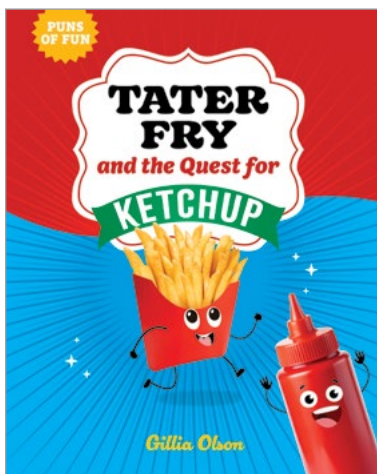

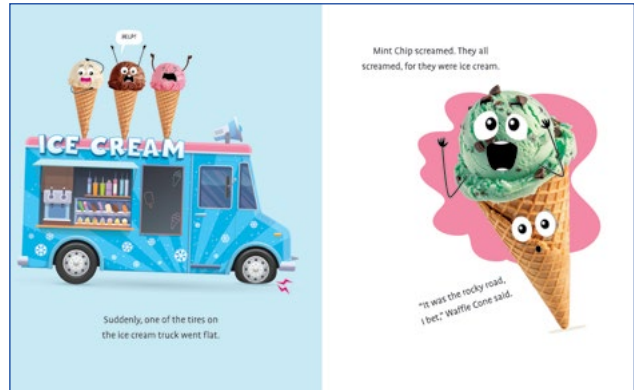

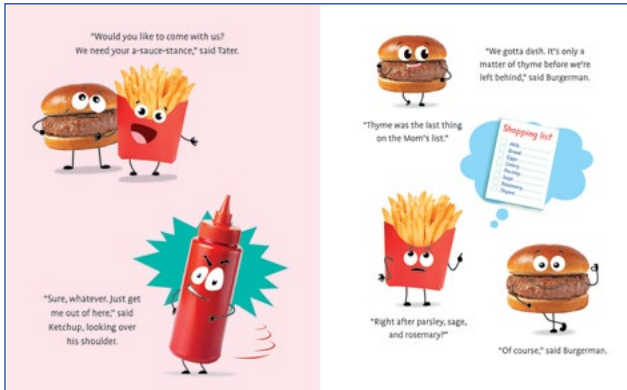

There are so many fun-looking rides here. I can't wait to try them all. Where should I start? Maybe I should ride the Ferris wheel. It is tall. Maybe a little too tall. Oh, look! A carousel. It spins too. But it is closer to the ground. I think I'll start there.

All in the Name

The giant tortoise's name says it all. This creature is massive! Of all tortoises, giant tortoises are the largest in the world. Fully grown, these creatures can weigh as much as a vending machine. They need strong, sturdy legs to support their heavy heads, shells, and tails.

A GIANT TORTOISE'S LEGS ARE SO STRONG THAT THE BIG ANIMAL COULD EASILY CARRY AN ADULT HUMAN ON ITS BACK!

What Does a Town Map Look Like?

Maps are drawn from a bird's-eye view. This means they are drawn as if looking down at an area from above like a bird would. Bird's-eye views of towns and cities help us see how close we are to other places. Maps of towns and cities use symbols to show where things are.

8

As well as symbols, maps of towns and cities also use color codes. Color coding is especially useful for road maps, as it can help drivers tell the difference between types of roads. The road map of London below is color coded so drivers can plan their routes in and out of the city.

Antarctica

Do you know where Antarctica is? Antarctica is the continent that is farthest south. Antarctica does not have any countries. It is split into different parts called territories. Each territory is owned by different countries around the world.

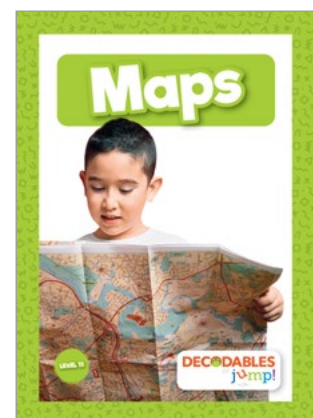

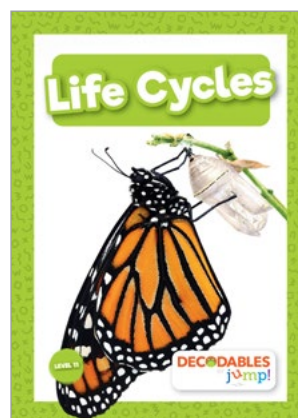

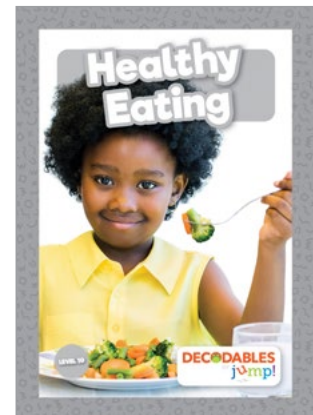

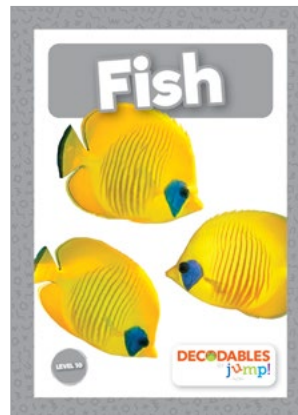

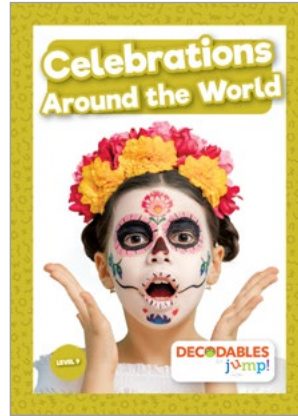

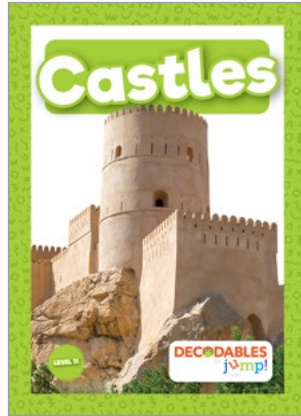

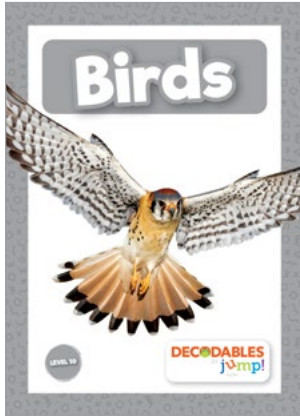

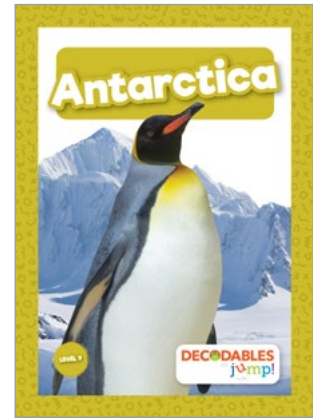

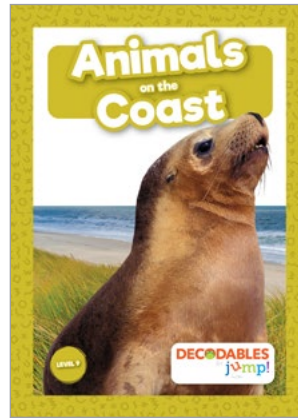

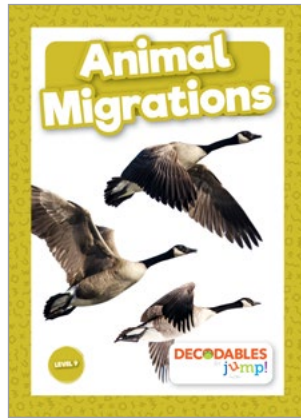

6

Nobody lives in Antarctica forever. Scientists and workers live in research stations for a short time to learn about Antarctica. People sometimes visit Antarctica just to see what it is like there.

A Star Is Born

Beyoncé Giselle Knowles was born on September 4, 1981, in Houston, Texas. From a very early age, she loved to sing. When Beyoncé was seven, she won a school talent show singing John Lennon's song "Imagine." Beyoncé's parents were very supportive of her budding talent, and she soon began singing lessons.

Beyoncé has a younger sister named Solange. Growing up, both girls loved to sing and dance.

Going Pro

During the 2013 NFL draft, Travis's dreams of playing professionally came true. The Kansas City Chiefs picked him for their team! Travis slowly began making a name for himself. In 2015, he played in his first Pro Bowl. Then in 2020, Travis set the record for most receiving yards by a tight end in one season with 1,416 yards.

Travis chose the jersey number 87 to wear for the Chiefs. This was for 1987—the year his brother was born.

Body Parts

Marsupials come in all shapes and sizes, and although they are all marsupials, they can sometimes look quite different from each other. They are similar to other types of mammals, but most marsupials are born very early and feed on their mother's milk from inside the pouch.

Tail

Many marsupials have long, strong tails. Some marsupials, such as kangaroos and wallabies, use their tails for balance as they jump. They can also use them to push themselves forward, like a third leg. The tail is so strong that it can hold the kangaroo's body weight.

FULL OF LIFE!

Giant's Causeway may look alien, but many of Earth's animals and plants have found ways to survive there. The area is a habitat for many seabirds. Fulmars, puffins, and skuas make nests along the rocky cliffs. In spring, colorful wildflowers burst through the cracks between the tall columns.

The tiniest kind of moth in the world lives along the causeway. The pygmy sorrel moth is only 0.1 inch (0.3 cm) wide from wingtip to wingtip.

Seabirds nesting at the Giant's Causeway use the cliffs to find shelter from the ocean's spray and harsh winds.

ADORED ANIMALS

Animals were important in ancient Egypt. Some were even seen as gods. Many Egyptian gods were part human and part animal.

Bastet: Part cat
Anubis: Part jackal
Tauere: Part hippopotamus
Thoth: Part ibis king of wisdom
Sobek: Part crocodile

CATS

Cats were especially likely to be mummified. People believed the felines had a connection to the goddess Bastet and that they would bring good luck. Cats were so important that the punishment for killing one, even by accident, was death.

When a pet cat passed away, everyone in the household shaved off their eyebrows to mourn the loss!

MILLIONS OF MUMMIES

In ancient Egypt, all sorts of animals were mummified after death. Their bodies were dried out and wrapped in cloth. They were then buried or used as offerings to the gods.

Rich families included jewelry with their mummified pets.

The Bloody End to the Borden

LIZZIE BORDEN HOUSE
FALL RIVER, MASSACHUSETTS

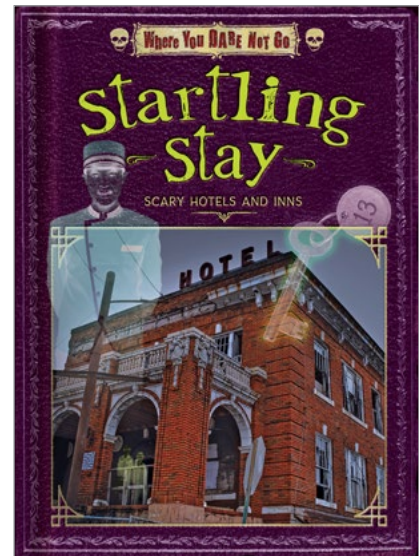

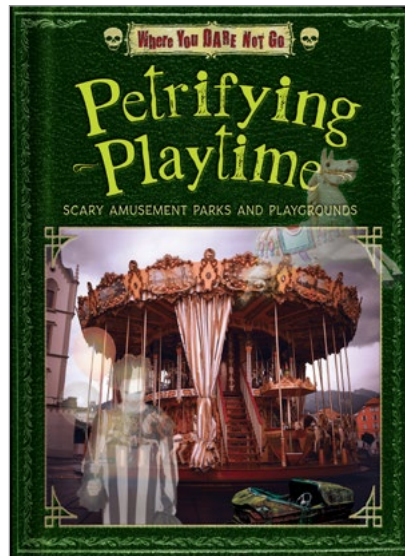

People who die in violent and unexpected ways are thought to be more likely to return as ghosts. Perhaps they are seeking revenge for their murders. Or maybe they don't know they are dead. Few died as suddenly and violently as Abby and Andrew Borden, so it's no wonder they are still at home.

On the hot morning of August 4, 1892, Abby Borden was making a bed in the guest room of her home. Someone came up behind her and crushed her head with 19 blows from an ax. About 90 minutes later, her husband, Andrew, was killed in the same way. Some people thought that their daughter, Lizzie, committed the crime. However, there was not enough evidence to prove it.

Today, the Borden house is an inn where people can spend the night. Yet guests should beware. Some visitors say they have heard the voice of a woman quietly crying. Others have reported seeing an older woman dressed in clothes from the 1890s cleaning the guest room. They have even been awakened in the middle of the night to see this same woman tucking them into bed. Maybe it is the ghost of Abby, still thinking she is tucking in her darling Lizzie. —JPD

Using photos from the Borden crime scene, the owners of the inn have recreated the way the rooms looked on the day that Lizzie's parents were killed. They also serve a breakfast similar to the one that the Borden's ate the morning they died.

CHAPTER 1 Ship of Dreams

On May 31, 1911, the hull of RMS Titanic splashed into water for the first time. Among the cheering crowd, proud workers looked out on the massive ship they were helping to build.

WE MADE THAT WITH OUR OWN HANDS, BOYS.

It would take another 10 months to complete the largest and most opulent ship the world had ever seen.

As another crowd waved Titanic off on its first voyage to New York City, they couldn't imagine that this mighty ship of dreams was about to end in a nightmare...

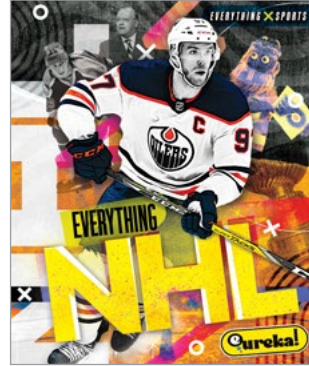

ICEBERG! RIGHT AHEAD!
